HOW MILAN STREET RECEIVED ITS NAME

An interesting story is told of how Milan street received its name. As the narrative goes a good many years ago a man named Joshua Winslow purchased the land in that vicinity from a Mr. Harding, who conducted a horse drawn ferry between Bath and Day's Ferry.

At several town meetings the matter of putting a street through where Milan street now is came up, and Mr. Winslow, owner of the land in that vicinity, was all for it. In fact he was so eager to see the street go through that each meeting he would break forth every so often with the exclamation, "I'll give my land!"

Finally, it was voted to put the street through and his offer was accepted and the officials had heard so much of his land they voted to call it "My Land" street which has been shortened to Milan.
